Your NameScore

Here is an overview of how NameScore has rated your name.

Someone knows what's up here!

The name has a pretty good NameScore. It has scored positively for many of the checks. That's already a great result. However, please take a look at the individual ratings to see if any of the areas where it has scored less highly is relevant to you. If that's not the case, you've probably got a great name on your hands!

Sound Impact Check

The Sound Impact check validates the proposed name for a variety of sound qualities and gives an overview of associations that the name can trigger by the way it sounds. These checks should be understood as a subjective assessment of the name, created by an artificial intelligence. As such, they should not be taken as an objective truth. However, they do give an assessment of how the name sounds, and that assessment is useful for guidance purposes.

Register

This check pertains to the vowel quality and reveals how low or high the name sounds overall.

This name does not sound particularly dark or light. So it works very well as an all-purpose name for various different uses and subject areas or for mixed/broad target groups.

Sound classifications

This check pertains to the consonant quality and reveals how hard or soft the name sounds overall.

This name does not sound particularly hard or soft. So it works very well as an all-purpose name for various different uses and subject areas or for mixed/broad target groups.

Suffix type

This check pertains to how the last letter influences the overall effect of the name. This factor is not as essential to the subjective assessment of the word as the sound classification and register, but it can be what tips the scales when deciding how well the name suits the project.

The ending of this name does not evoke any particular associations. This makes it suitable as an all-purpose name or for mixed target groups.

Word tension

This check pertains to how much the sounds in the name differ from one another.

The sounds in this name vary greatly and have very different tension levels. This makes the name sound high-energy and dynamic. It works well for start-up projects or young, modern target groups.

Search engine placement

The more seldom your name already appears on the Internet, the easier it is for you to place it online and the more quickly it can be found. Namefruits has therefore checked to see how often your name already appears as search result in the usual search engines. The rarer your name, the better.
